Certain hotels symbolise the glamour of a city and keep its history alive and the Copacabana Palace is one of them. This hotel is the legendary meeting place of Rio's high society. For decades, film stars, princesses and politicians have come here for fine cuisine, dancing, superb service and sheer sophistication. Opened in 1923, and today owned by the luxury Orient Express Group, all of the rooms and suites are decorated with fine period furniture and offer views of the ocean, the spectacular swimming pool, or Copacabana Avenue.
